

Claims

1. A mobile telephone configured to handle business relations and business activities, said telephone comprising means for:
- 5 - receiving a command from a user via a user interface,
- acting on said command resulting in an activation of a functional unit comprising means for:
- receiving user commands and data,
- 10 - manipulating said data,
- storing said data in any of a customer database, a resource booking database and a cash register database,
- presenting output data to the user.
2. A mobile telephone according to claim 1, further comprising means for:
- 15 - exchanging data with a phonebook database.
3. A mobile telephone according to claim 1, further comprising means for:
- exchanging data with a calendar database.
- 20 4. A mobile telephone according to claim 1, further comprising means for:
- exchanging data between any of the customer database, the resource booking database and the cash register database.
- 25 5. A method for handling business relations and business activities in a mobile telephone, said method comprising:
- receiving a command from a user via a user interface,
- acting on said command resulting in an activation
- 30 of a functional unit capable of:
- receiving user commands and data,
- manipulating said data,
- storing said data in any of a customer database, a resource booking database and a cash register database,
- 35 - presenting output data to the user.

6. A method according to claim 5, further comprising:
 - exchanging data with a phonebook database.
7. A method according to claim 5, further comprising:
 - exchanging data with a calendar database.
- 5 8. A method according to claim 5, further comprising:
 - exchanging data between any of the customer database, the resource booking database and the cash register database.